

IMPORTANT UPDATE

On format change to remote mode of The 21st International Multidisciplinary Conference Reliability and Statistics in Transportation and Communication (RelStat-2021)

14 - 15 October 2021, Riga, Latvia

On behalf of the Organising Committee, we are sorry to inform that due to the COVID-19 pandemic, in accordance with the current measures against spread of the disease by the Government of Latvia, the 21st International Multidisciplinary Conference “Reliability and Statistics in Transportation and Communication” (RelStat-2021) will now be held remotely on 14-15 October 2021.

It is a huge drawback, as the RelStat conference has always been known for benefiting its participants greatly with extra-curricular events, the real-life scientific debate, and interpersonal communication. At the same time, the Transport and Telecommunication Institute strictly adhere to own social responsibility standards and aim to contribute to the global efforts to tackle the spread of the disease. First and foremost, we care for the safety of all the participants, guests, and the community. Thus, the remote format is the only possible option under existing circumstances.

We keep our general goal of being an international forum for scientists and professionals in academia, industry, and government. Being at the forefront of technological advancement, we believe in making the conference work also via remote technical solutions. Thus, we are committed to ensuring a meaningful and lively discussion of recent research results, ideas, technologies, as well as all theoretical and practical issues arising in transport, information and communication technologies. Notably, arrangements regarding the publication of the proceedings remain as they were.

All further organisational details and practicalities will follow shortly. Do not hesitate to contact us in case of any questions, concerns, or uncertainties you have.

Sincerely yours,

ORGANISING COMMITTEE
